James Monroe to Thomas Jefferson

Sepr. 1. 1802.

Jas. Monroe's best respects to Mr. Jefferson. If he has a moment of leasure, he will thank him for a few words on the subject of a note he left at Monticello yesterday, in addition to wh. he begs to trouble him with the enclosed. If the accomodation wh. it proposes can be given, it will essentially forward the arming of the militia of the State. He will be happy to bear Mr. Jefferson's commands to Richmond, whither he sits out tomorrow morning.
